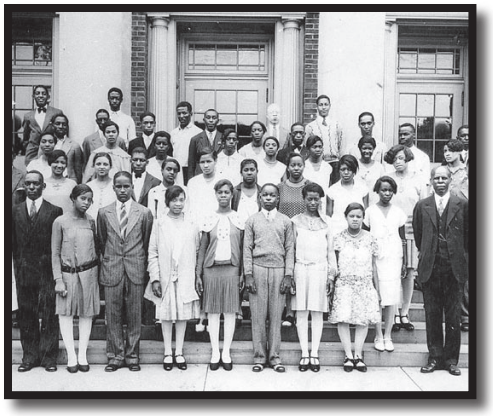
Hagley MUSEUM AND LIBRARY



Dear Educator:

Hagley Museum and Library is pleased to announce that we have copies of "A Separate Place: The Schools P. S. du Pont Built" available for area schools and educational institutions.

This fascinating documentary looks at the ambiguous legacy of segregation and desegregation in Delaware's educational system. Focusing on the schools built by P. S. du Pont for African American communities in the 1920s, the film is based on contemporary images and compelling interviews with former teachers and students. The film is available in its full fifty-three minute length suitable for high school, college, and general audiences, and a shorter twenty-three minute version for grades four through eight. A companion curriculum packet of primary source documents is available for elementary, middle, and high school levels.

The film can be provided free to public schools in Delaware. For all other institutions, the cost is $10. The curriculum packet can be ordered at no additional cost. You may also download the packet from our website, www.hagley.org.

To order, please fill out the form below and send it with your payment, if required. You may also contact the Coordinator of Education at Hagley Museum and Library at (302) 658-2400, ext 285.
